ACTION PLAN | 2015–2020

Acknowledgement of Country

Wominjeka – Welcome

'Wominjeka' means 'Welcome' in the Woiwurrung Language of the Wurundjeri People.

The Australian campuses of Swinburne University of Technology are located in Melbourne's east and outer east. The Wurundjeri People are the traditional custodians of these lands, and we respectfully acknowledge them and their Elders, past and present.

We also acknowledge the Traditional Custodians of lands throughout Australia where we conduct business, and their Elders, Ancestors, cultures and heritage.

Message from the First Peoples Disability Network Australia

FPDN is the peak body representing Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples living with disability and carers throughout Australia. We would like to acknowledge the Wurundjeri people, their Elders past and present, other traditional custodians and their Elders throughout Australia.

We would also like to acknowledge and congratulate Swinburne University of Technology on the vision and commitments expressed throughout the AccessAbility Action Plan 2020. Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people experience high rates of disability with 50% having a disability or long-term health condition, and a very high number of carers.

Our relationship with Swinburne commenced in 2007 when many of the current FPDN leadership and Elders throughout Australia worked with the University on the landmark report Building Culturally Secure Services for Indigenous Australians with Disability (2007). This report led to the establishment of our peak body alongside other key information and advice to government, including about education and employment.

We look forward to working with Swinburne and other education providers to make a real and positive difference in the lives of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples living with disability, and carers throughout Australia.

Message from the Vice-Chancellor

I am pleased to introduce Swinburne's AccessAbility Action Plan 2015–2020.

At Swinburne we celebrate and respect the strength that difference creates. Our aspiration is to create an environment where all of our staff and students can reach their full potential.

Swinburne's AccessAbility Action Plan details our strategy to create a supportive, diverse and inclusive university and to be disability confident.

The actions described in the plan will help ensure we are a provider of choice for students and an employer of choice for staff living with disability – as well as those with carer responsibilities.

To become disability confident means that we:

- understand how disability affects every aspect of our University – our staff, students and visitors;
- provide support for our students and staff who are living with disability and carers;
- create an inclusive and diverse culture that provides opportunity for people living with disability; and
- make reasonable adjustments to enable individuals living with disability to access, participate and contribute on an equal basis.

I look forward to working together to make a real difference to the lives of those who are living with disability.

Professor Linda Kristjanson
Vice-Chancellor and President

AccessAbility Action Plan

Vision

Swinburne is a recognised leader in quality, accessible and inclusive education and employment for people living with disability, and carers.

Case Studies

Inclusion Melbourne

Inclusion Melbourne is a disability charity and Victoria's oldest day service for people with an intellectual disability. This project involved developing business plans for Inclusion Melbourne, a cooperative which houses a number of microbusinesses, as well as developing options of potential sharing of the range of fundraising tools and techniques across programs in order to maximise savings.

Interchange Inner East

Interchange Inner East is a not for profit community organisation that provides a range of programs and services to meet the respite needs of families of children and young adults with a disability. Teams of consulting students developed an effective and cost efficient means of recruiting, supporting and retaining a community of casual respite support workers, using social media/electronic communication.

Swinburne's AccessAbility Action Plan 2020

Swinburne's AccessAbility Action Plan (AAP) has a clear vision; with goals, actions and responsibilities to complement its realisation. Implementing our AAP in Swinburne's Australian campuses will assist us to identify and change any practices that could be discriminatory, and that might prevent staff and students living with disability, carers, and visitors to our university from learning and working with us.

Importantly, the AAP places an emphasis on developing and harnessing the ability of people living with disability and carers. The AAP respects the diversity, individual strengths and natural talent that people living with disability and carers bring to Swinburne as students, employees and visitors.

The AAP is a road map for action. Successful implementation of AAP strategies will support our commitment to being 'disability confident' – a University that provides a supportive, positive and inclusive environment for people living with disability and carers.

The AAP also provides a mechanism under the Disability Discrimination Act 1992 (Cth) to produce the change required to eliminate disability discrimination, direct or unintentional and indirect. Governance of the AAP will sit with a Steering Group comprising Senior Leaders within the University.

What is disability?

The definition of disability under the Disability Discrimination Act 1992 includes people experiencing physical, intellectual, medical, psychiatric, sensory, neurological, and learning disabilities, and these can be temporary or permanent, fluctuating or constant.

At Swinburne we recognise that students and staff living with disability may require adjustments in the teaching, learning and research environment and workplace that will assist in their access to and participation in education or employment. We know that we have students and staff in all areas of the University who are living, working and studying with disability.

What is meant by the term 'carer'?

The Australian Government Carer Recognition Act 2010 defines carers as 'people who provide personal care, support and assistance to another individual in need of support due to disability, medical condition, including terminal or chronic illness, mental illness or is frail and aged'.

Why do we need an AccessAbility Action Plan?

At Swinburne we value the diversity of our student and staff community, including people living with disability. The development of our AAP occurred not only to ensure compliance but to encourage action to improve access to post-secondary education and employment for people living with disability and for carers. The AAP underpins the University's commitment to an accessible, inclusive and diverse study and work environment for all.

What legislation underpins the AccessAbility Action Plan?

Specific international (United Nations), Commonwealth and Victorian legislation informs our AccessAbility Action Plan. The Commonwealth Disability Discrimination Act 1992 and the accompanying Disability Standards for Education 2005 require organisations to address discrimination and provide access to people living with disability. Below is a diagram of the relevant legislation with a summary of the legislation at page 14.

Guiding Pillars

Swinburne has identified six key pillars for action in the AccessAbility Action Plan.

Pillar One: Culture – We support a positive and inclusive environment for all, including people living with disability and carers. We will actively seek contributions from students and staff living with disability when developing and implementing policy and practice guidelines. We will at all times embrace diversity and pride ourselves on providing high quality, accessible and inclusive education and employment.

Pillar Two: Student Support and Engagement – We will ensure that our student engagement and support services are inclusive and meet the needs of people living with disability, and carers. We will provide a range of services to Swinburne students from enrolment through to career counselling and post-qualification transition support.

Pillar Three: Education – We will provide inclusive and accessible educational environments, making reasonable adjustments to meet the specific needs of our students living with disability, and carers. We will promote inclusive and accessible practice across the University and actively identify and address barriers to ensure that everyone has access to education and research opportunities across our vocational, undergraduate and postgraduate program areas.

Pillar Four: Employment and Staff Support – We will build an inclusive and supportive culture and human resource management strategies that include best practice in the recruitment, employment and support of people living with disability, and carers. We are also committed to increasing opportunity for the employment and development of people living with disability and carers within Swinburne.

Pillar Five: Communication and Administration – We value diversity and will ensure that our policies, systems and processes are inclusive of people living with a disability, and carers. Our communications and administrative practices will at all times consider the needs of our students, staff and visitors living with disability, and carers.

Pillar Six: Facilities – We will ensure that our built environment is safe and accessible for our staff, students and visitors who live with disability.

Pillar One: Culture

We support a positive and inclusive environment for all, including people living with disability and carers. We will actively seek contributions from students and staff living with disability when developing and implementing policy and practice guidelines. We will at all times embrace diversity and pride ourselves on providing high quality, accessible and inclusive education and employment.

Summary of relevant legislation

Disability Discrimination Act 1992 (Cth)

The Disability Discrimination Act (DDA) is a federal law that aims to:

- Eliminate discrimination against people living with disability
- Promote community acceptance of the principle that people living with disability have the same fundamental rights as all members of the community
- Ensure, as far as practicable, that people living with disability have the same rights to equality before the law as other people in the community

The DDA prohibits unlawful discrimination against people living with disability and promotes inclusive approaches, rather than the provision of separate or 'parallel' access and services whenever possible.

United Nations Convention of the Rights of Persons with Disability (2006)

Countries that have signed the Convention commit to developing and carrying out policies, laws and administrative measures for securing the rights of persons with disabilities as recognised in the Convention, and to abolish laws, regulations, customs and practices that constitute discrimination (Article 4). The Convention also notes the importance of combating stereotypes and prejudices, and promoting awareness of the capabilities (the ability) of people living with disability (Article 8).

Note: Australia ratified the UN Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disability on July 17 2008. Australia was one of the first Western countries to do so.

Equal Opportunity Act 2010 Victoria

The objectives of the Equal Opportunity Act 2010 are to encourage the identification and elimination of discrimination, sexual harassment and victimisation and their causes, and to promote and facilitate the progressive realisation of equality.

This Act includes directions to employers to make reasonable adjustments for an employee with a disability, or an individual who is offered employment.

Australian Government's Disability Standards for Education (2005) states the obligations of education and training providers to ensure students living with disability are able to access and participate in education and training free from discrimination, and on the same basis as other students.

Australian Government's Disability (Access to Premises-Buildings) Standards 2010 stipulates set performance requirements for technical specifications to ensure dignified access to, and use of, buildings for people living with disability.

Australian Vice-Chancellors' Committee Guidelines Relating to Students with Disability (2006) provides guidelines for the university sector that can be used as benchmarks for good practice.

Fair Work Act 2009 (Cth) governs the employment of all workers. It includes the rights and responsibilities of both employers and employees and employee organisations. It also includes rights and responsibilities pertaining to employees who have a physical or mental disability, and individuals who are carers of a person under 18 years of age who has a disability.
